

CIGAR

Santè Ria

Cigars have a long and interesting history.

They have been around for well over a thousand years, historians generally believe that the cigar was invented by the ancient Mayans, who would wrap the tobacco in a palm or a plantain leaf and smoke it. Over the years, Cuba became a very popular location to grow tobacco plants, due to the fertile land and warm climate.

H Upman Half Corona

Well-defined balsamic aromas develop, with woody and spicy nuances, strength is medium-light.

AED 55

Vegueros Mananitas

Manzanitas has a creamy smoke with earth and grass flavours. The more you smoke the cigar, you will be met with hints of pepper.

AED 55

Vegueros Entretiempo

Brings to the palate roasted aromas with spices in the background. The smoke is creamy and pleasant, strength is average.

AED 75

Hoyo de Mont Epicure

With a smooth strength, it has an intense tobacco taste, blended with cocoa, cinnamon and dried fruits.

AED 115

Montecristo #2

Extraordinary teeming with rich but not overwhelming flavors of leather, such sweet spices as cinnamon and nutmeg and the cigar's trademark tangy wood note.

AED 125

Cohiba Esplendidos

Deep, rich, generous and with a strength that comes to be bigger than it appears at first sight.

AED 175